

Best Execution Information

Summary of the analysis and conclusions drawn from HSBC Private Bank (UK) Limited's (PB's)¹ detailed monitoring of the quality of execution in 2019.

Class of Instrument: Swaps, Forwards and other currency derivatives

Notification if <1 average trade per business day in the previous year: N

Top five execution venues ranked in terms of trading volumes (descending order)	Proportion of volume traded as a percentage of total in that class	Proportion of orders executed as percentage of total in that class	Percentage of passive orders	Percentage of aggressive orders	Percentage of directed orders
HSBC Bank plc* (MF6I5ZYZBEU3UXPYFY54)	100%	100%	N/A	N/A	0%

* Relevant trades for the purpose of this class of instrument are Dual Currency Investments, FX Forwards and FX Options. PB acted as counterparty to trades for FX Forwards. These trades were predominantly hedged on a back to back basis with HSBC Bank plc which therefore provided the liquidity for the trades and as such is treated as the execution venue for the purposes of this report. Please note a small number of trades may not be hedged. However pricing was based on HSBC Bank plc quotes in the same way as for hedged trades.

PB traded Dual Currency Investments and FX Options as client agent with HSBC Bank plc as the client's contractual counterparty. As such HSBC Bank plc was the execution venue for all such transactions.

PB and HSBC Bank plc are members of the HSBC Group, one of the world's largest banking and financial services organisations.

For all trades executed in 2019, and unless specifically instructed by clients, PB considered the following factors paramount in obtaining best execution (in order of priority):

1. The price of the financial instrument and the costs related to execution were together considered the most important factors in providing best execution.
2. The speed at which PB was able to execute client orders as this enabled PB to offer a price representative of the market at the time the order was given.
3. The size of the order, and the overall liquidity of the financial instrument being traded. In 2019 all client trades were in liquid currency pairs and in sizes that allowed PB to execute these transactions outright and within normal operational thresholds.
4. Other factors considered were the likelihood of execution and settlement and counterparty risk. Counterparty risk on PB and on HSBC Bank plc for Dual Currency Investments and FX Options, from a credit standpoint was considered acceptable for our clients. In addition systems, controls and arrangements within PB and/or HSBC Bank plc (as relevant) were considered to adequately address execution and settlement risk.

PB frequently monitored and reviewed trades in 2019 to ensure its best execution thresholds were maintained. On the basis of this monitoring PB remains satisfied that the arrangements it makes with respect to the execution of client orders for this class of instrument, including obtaining liquidity from HSBC Bank plc, enabled it to comply with its best execution obligations for retail clients. PB did not receive any payments, discounts, rebates or non-monetary benefits from HSBC Bank plc in connection with the above arrangements. HSBC Bank plc charges were included in the price of the hedging contract or, in the case of Dual Currency Investments and FX Options, in the price of the relevant instrument executed on behalf of the client, and as such were reflected in the pricing offered to PB clients.

For the service of order execution PB treated all clients as retail clients; all execution decisions were made according to a single policy.
